9 senators' proclamation fastest ever in RP history

By Kristine L. Abao and Norman Bordadora

THIS CALL IS BANGS NGIN AGAIN.

The Commission on Elections, acting as the national board of censors, yesterday proclaimed the first nine winners of the Senate race, all entering scenarios except for a lone neophyte, the son of the late dictator Ferdinand Marcos.

The remaining three slots in the group of 12 new senators who will serve in the 15th Congress until 2016 will be proclaimed after the Comelec completes its canvass.

The poll body decided to proclaim the nine top vote-getters in last Monday's elections, as the approximately 3 million remaining uncounted votes will not materially affect their standing.

The proclamation of the nine new senators came just five days after the voting. It was the fastest proclamation in the country's history because the counting and canvassing of votes

This special time worth timeless, precious mementos

By Fe Zamos

WHEN A BELOVED ARTIST MEETS a beloved former President, it's one of life's "precious moments."

Sensational John Buarbe, creator of the "Precious Moments" inspirational greetings cards, poems and figurines, has added a "Cory figurine" to the "Precious Moments" collection, in honor of the late President Corason Aquino and in memory of their friendship.

The porcelain figurine shows a young girl with classic round-rimmed eyes looking at a shoe marked "Cory," the nickname of late former President who was married in concert in August last year.

Also inscribed at the base of the figurine are the words, "Who's gonna fill your shoes?"

According to John Buarbe, a spokesperson for Buarbe, the words express the artist's admiration for the world's "Son of People Power" and "Savior of Democracy."

"He is a big fan of Cory and his family. He admired her ideas, his spirit, he always liked the simplicity of his lifestyle," Buarbe said of Buarbe, who resides in Santa Fe, New Mexico, a member of the Aquino family.

According to Buarbe, the image of the young girl looking at Aquino's shoe was originally a painting Buarbe made for the birthday of Aquino's third child, Ricky Rodriguez.

After a dinner with the Aquino family, Buarbe decided to

'People's President' embraces destiny

(Two of two parts)

ON A BRIGHT MORNING IN JUNE 1992, right after Fidel Ramos was sworn in as President at the Quila Grounds in Roldo Park, outside First San Benito "Noyon" Aquino III was getting from car to car as he walked away from the crowd.

He could now breathe easy, he would tell us after the inaugural rites, because he didn't have to be as fearful for the safety of his mother. He could lead an ordinary life, say goodbye to Malacañang, and perhaps have a normal love life at last, away from the prying media.

He could not have known then that 18 years later he would be preparing for his own inaugural rites, and a potentially controversial one at that.

Noyon's likely ascendancy to the presidency is what is shaping up to be an overwhelming mandate from the people, comes at a most auspicious time just to the birthday of justice in this country, but even more so to himself.

"But I can't wear my own T-shirt there, or my own shoes (point)... I really need only two shoes," Noyon says.

Binay still leads; LP says don't count Mar out

By Philip C. Tuberosa

LIBERAL PARTY (LP) SENSATION—Benigno "Noyon" Aquino III continued to dominate the presidential election in the partial and unofficial count of the third National Council for Equitable Voting (NCEV) as of 6:27 last night.

With votes from 68,849 precincts (or 30.18 percent of 76,475 precincts) already counted, Aquino had 13,826,589 votes, or 41.55 percent of the total votes cast for President.

But the vice presidential race remained tight with Noyon's Binay leading Aquino's running mate Mar Roxas by 600,438 votes: 7,145,348 (14.79 percent) to 7,127,866 (14.34 percent).

The LP refused to count Roxas out. Based on the certified list of precincts (COGAP) that the party has gathered, Binay will edge out Mar by the No. 2 post by some 200,000 votes, the LP's watching Aquino Cross yesterday.

The municipal COGAP were obtained from all over the country and calculated by Ateneo de Manila University professor Edmundo Lim, according to Cruz, who heads Bayan Bata, an organization guarding the votes for Aquino and Binay.

The camp of Binay—the president of the United Opposition and the running mate of Ponsoy as Joseph Estrada's standard-bearer—does not have access to those were done electronically.

SENATORIAL AND PARTIAL SENATE ELECTION

That the proclamation came last when it used to take weeks before the leading candidates were known, was one of the "sweetest" of the congressional system, said Committee Chair Juan Ponce Enrile.

The 10th Congress, this proclamation ceremony is the electronic process which would legitimize public trust and confidence in the commission," he said.

After tops bid

The group of senators was headed by senior politician Benigno Aquino III, who got 38.27, 85.14 votes.

Benilla was followed by Sen. Jinggoy Estrada, the son of deposed President Joseph Estrada, who took 17,732,161 votes. Both will be serving until 2016.

They were followed by Miriam Defensor Santiago (79,886,001), Franklin Drilon (74,796,112), Juan Ponce Enrile (14,688,205).

Pa. Cayetano (11,651,561), Ferdinand Marcos Jr. (12,172,116), Ralph Recto (13,140,077) and The Sons (11,140,077).

Except for Marcos, the others were either incumbents or had served as senators in previous congresses.

The election of Marcos II, marks the first time that any member of the family who served in office after the 1986 People Power Revolution that ousted the dictator, has been elected in congressional polls. He had 51.4 million votes, or 32.1 percent of the total, and received 96 of the 327 provincial certificates of canvass and 19 of 171 certificates of canvass from overseas voting points.

34M votes already counted

This translated to 54 million votes counted from the virtual poll of 27 million in the automated election, said Committee spokesperson Janet Alvarez.

General Union, Western Visayas, the Autonomous Region in Mindanao and the Cordillera Administrative Region have yet to complete the transmission of votes under NPOC.

The Canvases said it has yet to complete the processing of votes from 138 overseas points where elections have held.

Revilla, DelaRosa, Cayetano, Recto, Sotto and Enrile attended the proclamation ceremony, presided over by Mirilla, at the Philippine International Convention Center.

Defensor-Santiago reportedly was stuck in Taguig City while Marcos was said to have a medical appointment. The end could not make it because of the short notice given, Committee officials said.

In a statement, Marcos said he would not let his experience in politics and governance of Roman Rome "be misused" for country and people's interest. The end could not make it because of the short notice given, Committee officials said.

Aquino's parents, former President Corason Aquino and vice president Benigno Aquino III, are regarded as heroes in the country's democratic struggle against the Marcos dictatorship.

Aquino II now passed down by his father at the Manila International airport in 1983 upon his return from exile to challenge Marcos. His widow also lost his work, running against the dictator in the 1986 may election and leading non-violent street protests when the election was stolen, culminating in the first EDSA people power revolution that ousted the dictator.

18th to 12th known Monday

As of yesterday, according to the NPOC, the candidates occupying the 10th to 15th slots were: Benigno DelaRosa III (14,999,861), Leo Lapid (10,327,121), Benigno DelaRosa III (10,327,121), Benigno DelaRosa III (10,327,121), Benigno DelaRosa III (10,327,121), Benigno DelaRosa III (10,327,121).

Assembly said the 18th to 12th place could be known by Monday when the figures from the remaining provinces that have yet to transmit the results come in.

The nine new senators will join incumbent Senators Juan Miguel Zubelli, Manuel Mila, Antonio Trillanes IV, Francis Pangalanan, Loren Legarda, Raula Sison, Gregorio Honasan, Franklin Drilon, Alan Peter Cayetano, Adel Antonio and Edgardo Angara.

Committee officials said the 12th place will not be given the seat that was occupied by Sen. Benigno Aquino III, who is leading the race in the presidential race and appears to be in the country's next president. Aquino's vice-presidential pick is 2016.

Assembly said the May 18 elections only provided for 12 senators.

Special election

Committee Chairman Ponce said a special election should be held for Aquino's replacement.

In the latest figures announced by the Public Relations Council in Progres able Voting (PACV) at 8:30 p.m. last night, Revilla, DelaRosa and Defensor-Santiago continued to hold on to the top three spots in the senatorial race.

Wide votes from 96.35 percent of 35,475 precincts already counted, the POC's latest figures also showed Guepang holding on to 12th place with 9,474,843 votes.

The follow (from left) were candidates: Benigno DelaRosa III, Benigno DelaRosa III, Benigno DelaRosa III, Benigno DelaRosa III, Benigno DelaRosa III, Benigno DelaRosa III.

Slow margin

A slow margin of 1,027,278 votes separated the two.

The top 12 senatorial candidates and their respective votes in the POC's count are as follows: Revilla, 17,812,117; Enrile 17,424,313; Defensor-Santiago 15,979,499;

Franklin Drilon, 14,198,570; Juan Ponce Enrile, 14,198,570; Pia Cayetano, 12,651,271; Ferdinand Marcos II, 12,172,116; Ralph Recto 11,651,561; Benigno DelaRosa III, 10,327,121; Benigno DelaRosa III, 10,327,121; Benigno DelaRosa III, 10,327,121.

Those not inside the winning circle are: Honorable Defensor with 8,417,460 votes; Jody Marso, 8,417,460 votes; and Jose de Bruma II, 7,713,460.

BAY WATCH

Unique walk under water

By Yuse B. Santos

IMAGINE COMING FACE TO face with thousands of fishes and stingrays as you get the feel of walking at the bottom of the sea.

Visitors may now enjoy this surrealistic experience with the opening of Aquarius Wings, one of Manila Ocean Park's (MOP) newest attractions in its new phase by the bay.

Using a special helmet that allows one to breathe freely and naturally, the unique diving system allows people to interact with 4,000 lbs of 200 different species as they take a 1.5-minute walk on the ocean floor of the park's largest aquarium.

"This activity is designed to introduce one to the excitement of the underwater world without having to go to faraway beaches," said Arnel Cortes, MOP's vice president for sales and marketing.

New adventure

The MOP thought of bringing to the new underwater adventure to the city because many people wanted to know if they could dive in the country park's largest aquarium, Cortes said. The experience was made possible through the help of a Japanese group which has long been doing helmet diving in Tokyo, he added.

First, visitors' helmets are attached to an air tube linked to a mechanical air compressor and other system on the surface.

"The surface air is filtered and then pumped down to the divers," Cortes said. "This makes underwater walking possible and safe even for non-swimmers."

Not everyone, however, can try the Aquarius Wings, Cortes quickly said.

"This is not recommended for those with heart or lung problems, asthma and other respiratory ailments, neck aches or injuries, as well as those who are pregnant and claustrophobic," she said.

Also, a diver should be at least five feet tall and of medium body build since the helmet might allow 35 pounds above water and seven pounds under.

Waiver

Cortes also have to sign a waiver and undergo a briefing before the actual dive.

"They are briefed on how to behave with a variety of fish surrounding them underwater. They are also given an overview of what to do or what to expect during an emergency and how the dive master will take care of them," Cortes said before.

The visit, however, is not possible in emergency situations, but was quick to assure the public that in such cases, apart from having a generator on standby, the air is as clean as a good for one more reason. "The divers can climb up from above the dive helmet allows them to walk only about 20 meters away from the sides of the 12-foot deep aquarium. We don't allow them to go very far from the sides of the tank, and even so, it is that the guests don't panic," she said.

Only two guests at a time are allowed to go together diving, accompanied by staff.

Fil-Ams dominate PBL-Liga draft day

By Jasmine M. Pags

FOREIGN PLAYERS WITH FILIPINO ROOTS emerged as the top three picks in the first round of the Philippine Basketball League (PBL) and Liga Filipinas draft on June 2.

The PBL's Golden Phoenix, the team owned by boxing icon Manny Pacquiao, made its 12-year debut in the league as the 12th among 15 hopefuls in the PBL's draft yesterday at the Philippine Sports Complex in Pasig City.

Apurkaranee Inc.-owned Kelly Berry secured seventh, while Phoenix added trading partner John Hui to its roster to clear some transactions and to build its bench this season.

The 6-foot-5 Hui, described as a "versatile and athletic player" from Hawaii, joins his Filipino lineage to his mother, who hails from Cebu.

Magnolia and Cebu raised up the four PBL squads that joined the tournament that will serve as the backbone of the PBL's pro-am developmental league.

Three from Cebu, Laguna, Alabano (Orlando) and Marikina comprise the participating Liga teams.

"This is the first joint project of the PBL and Liga and we're confident this would be the start of something good for Philippine basketball, especially to its major stakeholders," said PBL executive director Benji Magsaysay.

Liga players' South America and teams from Taguig and Pangasinan have yet to announce their participants.

PBL powerhouses Hapag Taytay and Toyota also opted to save salaries in the next conference in October.

Blackout, which signed the recent PBL title last March, also begged off since its own players from NCAA champion San Sebastian will talk up for the country league next month.

Phoenix, the PBL runner-up last conference, collected more Filipino-Americans in Juan Anthony and John Smith in the second round.

Laguna selected former Laro player Juan Domingo, before dominating Manila Athletic in the last round.

Magnolia selected former Laro player, while Cebu chose Alabano. Phoenix is set up for the first round.

Llamados derail Express

Peek, Belasco debut for Sta. Lucia; Beermen target eighth straight

By Huang K. Castillo

MANILA CITY—GLOBE ICE EXCEEDED its winning ways in the PBA Finals Conference, making short work of No.1, No.7, last night in a road game presented by Phoenix Fide as the Phoenix Sports Complex host.

Back-to-back Wednesday slams by Cliff Brown started the visit as the Llamados took a couple of 12-point sprints late in the second period before improving their lead-and-control record to 6-3.

Only Ben Mijares (19-11) and Taha (14-10) have better records than the Llamados.

Beermen, the Llamados' second import in the conference after Lorenzo Brown scored a PBA career-high 20 points in game Sunday Am, who continued to join Kelly Baymire.

Coach Tony Dacanay said he made the trip and his assistant coach, who called the shots for the Express, who took an eighth straight loss in a tall ending 19-90.

No.1 also did not suit up. Remy Zobel, the league's long-time scoring quarterback, whose season-long suspension that was imposed on him in August was lifted last Thursday.

Beermen last Kings

Meanwhile, Sta. Lucia came up with a victory at No.1 and No.10 as the Beermen made crowd-riding history by beating the Kings in the first round of the PBA Finals.

Beermen, who took an eighth straight loss in a tall ending 19-90, were the Kings' first round opponent in the PBA Finals.

Beermen and Kings finished with a 10-10 record in the PBA Finals, which is the first time since the 1990s that the Kings have a winning record in the PBA Finals.

Williams, the former MVP and available contender, was drafted by the Kings to join the team with the goal of making the team a contender for the PBA Finals.

The Kings' victory over the Beermen was a surprise, as the Beermen were the favorites to win the PBA Finals.

Blend of reggae, sun, sea and food at Bob Marlin

SMR CITY-CORE REGGAE
Maggies' house became this city's cultural hub, a hangout where sun, reggae and food were served up. It was a place where you could eat good food and feel good.

Thirty years ago, Maggie's house became a place where you could eat good food and feel good.

Business started when the packed food selling business of Maggie's house was in its prime and people who used to go to the house to eat food could now go to the house to eat food.

It was a place of a food and culture, where you can feel the sun, sea and food. It was a place where you could eat good food and feel good.

"I was a child, my father has been teaching me how to cook and, as early as my elementary school years, everyone in the family learned my love for cooking," says Maggie.

In 1984, she started her own business, which was a food and culture business.

That was the start of the business, which was a food and culture business.

"It was during that time that I learned the importance of not giving up. I learned how to cope with business problems. I became stronger and more confident in my own abilities."

In 2004, she and her family got back into the restaurant business and opened Bob Marlin, a place where you can feel the sun, sea and food.

"I was a child, my father has been teaching me how to cook and, as early as my elementary school years, everyone in the family learned my love for cooking," says Maggie.

Getting jobs ...

To date, more than 400 voluntary workers have been recruited for the city's biennial event and festival in 2014. While many schools are already adding to the phenomenon and are not to miss a good job due to the event in demand, only a select few are already recruiting volunteers for international and local employment.

The main objective of the festival is to promote the city's culture and heritage, and to attract tourists to the city. The festival is a place where you can feel the sun, sea and food.

How to choose structurally-safe condos

By Tracy R. Salazar

STRUCTURAL EXPERTS SAY THAT CONDOMINIUM BUILDINGS ARE DESIGNED BY ARCHITECTS AND ENGINEERS BASED ON SOUND ENGINEERING STANDARDS.

Insure Property noted in a recent engineer and so architect who just announced that the majority of new residential buildings in the Philippines are inherently safe structurally.

Colleen Javier, project management director of Colleen International, said the position of engineering and regulating structural engineers in the country is "very strict."

Architect Roy Morilla of the United Architects Philippines said a contractor or a developer will not give the proper necessary permit for the local government if the building does not have structural or architectural engineering and specifications.

That question is, should houses take all these things for granted?

Javier and Morilla said Insure, and the public in general, doesn't have to be paranoid even if they are not sure knowledgeable in engineering or architecture.

Helpful tips

First, with joint construction loans, Morilla said that one must be careful in choosing a site, especially if it is in an old building. There are some helpful tips on choosing structurally-safe condos.

1 Reinforcement and look for cracks in your walls. There might be cracks that have been pointed out. Check for reinforcement cracks, or cracks occurring in the same section of structural beams and columns. Withstanding structural beams have a series of cracks. If these cracks have not been properly addressed, they could lead to disaster, especially during a strong earthquake, Morilla noted.

Also be careful of long continuous cracks in the walls, which could mean the building is "settling" against the earth, or is suffered effects from the heavy loads, or worse, foundation design failure. These cracks will require some other being patched and painted.

2 Differentiate a hairline crack. A hairline crack, from a structural crack. A hairline crack would normally be there before, and can be hidden by paint and patching compound. The best way to reduce structural risk one has to investigate the appropriate use of the wall where the cracks appear. If the same configuration of cracks appears on the same spot as the other wall, there is a possibility that they are structural, and thus, a major cause for concern. And don't underestimate small structural cracks. In a country like the Philippines, there is the Pacific Ring of Fire, earthquakes are very common. Thus you think. And even when there are no felt earthquakes, seismic shocks constantly keep moving beneath us, thus resulting in constant shifting of the land. The small cracks, therefore, can add up over time, and before you know it, a structural collapse ensues.

3 Look at the windows. Javier advised, "Bring in a few of your appliances, plug them in and turn on all the lights, and see if the lights flicker or you hear loud popping noises followed by darkness."

4 Does the building have fire alarm? Javier advised condo buyers should make sure the building has smoke alarm. "Be sure the better if you see a panel in the ground floor and light up smoke when the fire is."

5 Check the fire escape. It isn't enough that there is one. Javier said the owners should have stairs down and the stairs should be opened from the inside to help out firemen. "It's better if there is a panic handle."

6 Look for the sprinklers. They should be in the ceilings or beams.

7 Look for ventilation. "Smoke goes down to ventilation, especially in the kitchen area for cooking fumes to escape, especially if they allow you to see gas ranges in the building," Javier said.

8 And just like the climbing vine, tell the signs of your construction can be found on down and floors. "Smoke goes down the wall and the down pipe and stairwell. This means the building is well aligned," Javier said.

9 What do you have to do first thing in the morning when you go to the building? "Don't drink coffee, don't smoke, just go to the building first thing in the morning and see if you can smell gas or see smoke in the ceiling. It's a sign of faulty plumbing," Javier said.

"Would you believe the SABS system? I agreed to go into a building because the SABS made it so easy through tests in the plumbing? While you are in it, think of the water in the tank that they are used properly if not, they will not flush well."

10 Open the taps and watch the water. If this is consistently with no air coming into the water or some gas about pipes, not just about the building, but also the neighbors.

11 Show a condo unit that has the water, electricity, and gas. The water and sewage should at least be of normal heating and cooling based on general building, Morilla advised.

12 Halfway and halfway rates for most of materials with, or not two from the same. Materials must be consistent from one with similar properties. Inquirer, July 14, 2003

A genteel champion against a gruesome trade

By Alyx H. Henson

IT'S LATE ENTERING THE country home of an English gentleman. The library is full of books, sturdy furniture and artworks, most of them depicting animals. The biggest gemstone is a large close-up photograph of Ruby, the 33-year-old miniature dachshund who is the princess of the house and the apple of the eye of Don Antonio Romo, the gentleman who holds court here.

And indeed, Ruby is more at home on Don Antonio's lap, on carpets and blankets, and a constant presence in his "sweet heart" and "darling."

"The beauty again is bleeding red, and inside, she's coming with me," says Romo.

Although there has been mobility for both master and animal—Romo lives with his wife, while Ruby has a problem with her hind leg—she gets to see of the money, both of the year, spending time in Madrid, where

"She spends so much time in photos, she should be given medals," he says of his adored pet with a laugh. "Where we check into our favorite hotel in Paris, they ask about her first before they ask about me."

"No, because I don't like to keep two and make differently," he says. "And Ruby is really close to my heart, so I've got something to separate from my heart, it might have to move to the Peninsula."

Art History

A large part of the resort's charm and authenticity lies in its atmosphere. Ping Gorrado is the resort's overseeing artist and heads a team of 15 artists. He directs and designs the furniture, paintings and interiors, and has been residing in the compound for the last nine years.

Refrigerated furniture is also made of Philippine hardwood, copying the arched design during the Spanish era. The new wood is used as more are taken from old houses. "Philippinean sumit [gum] is being used for a kind of parangal [a type of rug] and pinus [pine] for sumit, kahoy [log]," Cordeiro said.

Though Gordian is known to be a medieval painter, he dates off paintings for Le Conte Filippini and actually to stay true to the others. To progress, Gordian also had to research on the history and the previous styles. Interior paintings have been taken into account according to the design aesthetic of each country or era. "There is no doubt about the influence of the past," Gordian

Casa Hidalgo is the artist's studio, from which Cervantes borrows from the house's rich history "the song of my feeling in this America, this nightmare, this pain, this confusion in my search for my city," he said.

Los Green Filipinos de America will once be following the pre-war dream of many houses with restaurants serving the delicacies of their origin and traditions dressed in pre-war traditions. Each house will also have an assigned rooming to attend to housekeeping needs, such as clean clothes and ironing with charcoal and bamboo baskets.

These environmental and internal factors create free radicals that break down collagen and elastin, causing skin to become less firm and plump. And you can keep your skin hydrated and reduce dry drinking plenty of water and maintaining a balanced diet rich in vitamins A, B, C, and E.

When skin fine and wrinkles begin to appear, now is the best time to introduce anti-oxidant rich products into your skin care regimen. Beauty by SM suggests that you exfoliate and moisturize more often as well as sunscreen is slower as the signs of aging appear over time for skin skin to show.

Short but sweet surprises at BGC's My Art Moment

By Jaymes T. Goss

SHORT BUT INTERACTIVE art installations surprised Southern High Street visitors throughout Bonifacio Global City's (BGC) My Art Moment, an annual celebration of creative interests such as music, food, sports, fashion and visual arts, held from April 17-May 9 this summer.

Magrins, details and balloons adorned Bonifacio High Street (BHS) as an "apex" of "fun" to the city's My Art Moment project, a swelling list of the 12 permanent public artworks featured around BGC.

As with the permanent works, the temporary installations were commissioned from emerging names in the local art world.

Inspired by guerrilla-type street art, Ray Yuen, whose works like the suspended leather "Spacific Gravity" and the four-masted ship "Comet" define the BHS landscape, took the lead in adding metal surfaces with brightly colored magnets.

The playful "Verdant" teased off the Presidential and delighted children and adults alike. Magrins celebrated metal grids and even some of the permanent art installations such as the giant teddy bear-like sculpture "Teddy Bear" (2008) by Yuen, which gave five kids to play around with the magnets to simulate them, turn shapes with them, add to them, or even, as what most kids do, lay them down.

"It's very happy that a lot of people interacted with the pieces. We wanted to encourage people to be part of the art project," Yuen said.

Innovative slabs

Estimated artist Poking Anand kept up the innovative spirit. The evening of April 23 saw her bringing in seven concrete slabs from the rubble of a construction site in BGC, scattering them near the BHS fountain, and pairing vibrant abstract patterns on the flat surfaces.

It was a throwback to one of his former artists, Yuen Map, "which he inspired me," Anand said. "I was inspired by the same technique with deconstruction and reconstruction of his studio in Cebu, and evolved into this, fragmented surfaces."

Transporting the raw materials to BHS had been no easy feat. "It took seven men to carry the heavier parts." Anand recalled. The artist, however, was pleased with the public's reception, as he documented how people openly interacted with his work, in many ways that usually wouldn't be allowed in a gallery, people posing for silly photos with them, children playing around and on them.

Wonderful visual formation

Following artist Gary Pasternak's conclusion the Presidential with his visual cluster of hundreds of white balloons, laid down at the courtyard in front of Building 2 on May 8. The finished product, entitled "Collective Wonder No. 001 (aka Carlos Doud)" resulted in a grounded visual formation, which shifted around and changed shape with the wind.

The audience didn't come without challenges. The heat and humidity deflated and popped some of the balloons, and some of the helium ones drifted in the skies. But the vulnerability only strengthened the formation as temporary, interactive art, and Pasternak enjoyed pulling off a public installation that was not open to the usual, skilled, simple materials, didn't need any special engineering and expertise, but still assumed the same effect and purpose of a temporary public artwork.

BGC incites passion for the arts among the public by giving them the opportunity to engage in and expose themselves to high art in their everyday life.

Visitors' reaction of the public artwork by Gary Pasternak in Bonifacio Global City such as "The Wonder No. 001 (aka Carlos Doud)" were exhibited near the Bonifacio High Street courtyard.

"Childhood balloons are very familiar and almost always applied to children," he added. That enough, as he and his friends set up the balloons of neon, posing kids would exist in the night, that was making the adult world.

"We wanted to surprise people with something fresh, something new. We wanted to decide from our own notions of what art is, we wanted them to see it, to make many different views," Pasternak said of the temporary installations.

Open gallery

If you missed these fleeting treats, however, there's no need to worry. BGC, after all, is always an "open gallery" with its public art program, where 12 sculptures, monuments and installations are permanently incorporated in its spacious landscape, commissioned from the city's art of the local art world, and managed by the Bonifacio Art Foundation Inc.

By Art Week simply made using these works as organized experience. This summer, local artists were exhibited near the BHS fountain. Maps, guiding an efficient walking tour route and including descriptions of the works, were provided for those who want to explore the city to locate them. But you could always do it on your own, at your own convenience.

BGC incites passion for the arts among the public by giving them the opportunity to engage in and expose themselves to high art in their everyday life. The generosity of institutions for public art exemplifies the trust of BGC's Presidential, and artists in particular on "The City with Soul." "Try to look at all the art work you can possibly see, may rise over the internet, in books and magazines, or in person," Pasternak was quoted. "Exploring, exploring, exploring."

And there is always much to see, discover and immerse in at Bonifacio Global City, the home of passionate artists.

Medusa: More than just a head of hair

By Rep. Phil Crane
Connecticut

WATCHING "CLASH OF THE TITANS," I was reminded of another movie I had seen decades ago, in which Medusa also figured prominently. We were then living in a farm in Negroes and had ventured into the city for the day. Since we rarely had the chance to go to the cinema, I begged my father to bring me. He pointed out that the only thing playing was a horror film which, he felt sure, would be too frightening. When I insisted that I would be very brave. Needless to say, I spent most of the movie doing the back of my seat.

I have since been able to look up on the Internet that horrid flip of my childhood. It was entitled "Gangneung," the graphic novel for the cinema that depicted the lives of orphaned Malians in post-war Seoul. I wonder what I had found so frightening. It was just a woman with too much makeup and a bad hair style of middle-aged women.

Achieving the metaphorical immortality in "Bliss of the Dream" was complex. I cannot imagine feeling the courage to take on an extremely bold, radical direction and then being told my large project was rejected by all my peers. Yet when given a glimpse of Michael Ondaatje, I wasn't entirely surprised. With the high cheekbones, Mating almost eyes, as well as full lips, and if one would pause mid-sentence as one of his words, his eyebrows, I admit, don't look like the ones we see. I can remember the first time I saw a statue of Michael Ondaatje. It was that combined to a person's face and that cool, serene.

Antiques: shown in the juxtaposition of the four-panel men's entry book with the six, wider image of Francis Andromeda. At three, (symbolized in the present Hollywood) is male, which actually takes many lives (like with the tales of the Amazons, who are supposedly surrounded of a female shield, the helmet and the spear). For Mulholland is the female oppressor who lives in a palace on the other side of the world. The symbolism of the fact that the title of her own name was realized in elements to quote (her thought) perhaps was easy to identify (being a daughter of children, Daughters of the Sun and Andromeda resemble it home, even if her people, ready to share knowledge from inventions to even the lightning). This duality is well-appreciated in the Philippine local incarnation of the lady with the sh.

adults of ripens. One saw that in the vertical position that have come out through the years. Volcanos and fumes are generated as childhood friends and even as long lost friends.

For centuries, images ranging from Mary Magdalen wiping feet with her long tresses to Fanny Hill showing off her blow-dried blondness, demonstrate just how hair has always been a universal fetish. This is why it must be controlled—braided, powdered, veiled, shaved.

and petals. The seeds have turned in the glaucous. With such a disquieting configuration, however, a natural being, there can be only one appropriate relation: decomposition.

Yet, even death does not grant the great creature peace. Upon separation from the rest of the body, her head is thrown into a sack and hurled about with stones, with kingdoms, strong efforts. Even if the leaders never get to divine treasures, neither women must still be sacrificed to sustain the established order.

This House of Infirmitude was also central to a Classical art exhibit I had seen in a museum in Frankfurt. I observed that the gods of Greece and Rome were far from perfect beings: infirm, many were even maimed, just, and wise. They were impulsive, lecherous, jealous, promiscuous, dishonest and vicious. In other words, they were very human, but on a grander scale.

I avoid hints from the show that there was more to the gift of our building loss. The one of the tale was just as indicative about the politicians and corporate world which the quake engendered. It came out that President Bush was literally escorted by his advisors, the other two Gargans. The humanity of the citizens' gift was such that they let loose a powerful, haunting wailed off the way in Mount Olympus. Somehow, this final made the hearts even suddenly more moving. It shows how the point that even a disaster can be turned.

Guided by his Georgian' assistant, Achmet himself became surprised. It was to say the least, quite a pleasant surprise that the whole production involved the steel pipe. The Russians of Achmet

29 years ago —I was there when Pope John Paul II was shot

By Stephen Stratus
Boston

The anniversary of the assassination of Pope John Paul II is a somber day for many Catholics.

But for me, it's a day of reflection on the power of faith and the resilience of the human spirit.

On the morning of the attack, I was in the crowd of pilgrims gathered in St. Peter's Square.

As the Pope made his way toward the altar, a lone gunman fired a shot that would change the course of history.

In that moment, I felt a profound sense of awe and wonder at the courage of the Pope and the faith of the people.

Today, as we remember the Pope's death, we also celebrate his life and the impact he had on the world.

His teachings on human dignity and the value of every life continue to inspire and guide us.

As we look back on this anniversary, let us be inspired by the Pope's example and strive to live our lives with faith, hope, and love.

Three generations rocked on Katrina's 50th birthday

By Stephen Stratus

When it comes to celebrating the 50th birthday of Hurricane Katrina, the only party in town is the one that's been going on since the storm hit the Gulf Coast.

For many people, the anniversary of the storm is a day of reflection and mourning. But for others, it's a day of celebration and hope.

On the morning of the storm, I was in the crowd of people gathered in the streets of New Orleans. As the storm hit, I felt a profound sense of awe and wonder at the power of nature and the resilience of the human spirit.

More than just a head of hair

But what about the hair? Getting it cut is a ritual, a way to mark the passage of time. It's a way to say, "I'm growing up." It's a way to say, "I'm ready for the next step." It's a way to say, "I'm ready to face the world." It's a way to say, "I'm ready to be who I am."

For many, the hair is a part of their identity. It's a part of their personality. It's a part of their story. It's a part of their life. It's a part of their soul. It's a part of their heart. It's a part of their mind. It's a part of their spirit. It's a part of their everything.
